Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 06 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Some night frost at first. Showers mostly in northeast Friday.

This Evening and Tonight:
Showers in northern, central and eastern areas tending to fade, although a few continuing, especially around coasts. Clearer spells elsewhere, especially Northern Ireland and southwest UK, leading to another frost, perhaps a sharp one, and the odd mist patch.

Friday:
Sunny spells, these quite prolonged in southwestern areas and probably Northern Ireland, with just isolated light showers. Elsewhere showers developing, heavy with hail in some northeastern parts. A little warmer.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Rain spreading from the southwest to all parts on Saturday, heavy in southwest England and south Wales. Sunny spells and showers, heavy in places, on Sunday and Monday. Windy.
